Kidnapped And Raped On Her Wedding Night

If she lives to be 100, Winnie Kramer will always remember her honeymoon as a time of horror—an hour after her wedding to Willi Kramer, she was kidnapped by three escaped cons.

They held her captive for three days while each raped her repeatedly and forced every sexual humiliation in the book on her.

The sexy blonde, 22, and her brown-haired groom, 24, were driving on the Autobahn toward their hoped-for Bavarian honeymoon when three armed men stopped their car.

The intruders were obviously escaped convicts. Two of them still wore prison uniforms.

Afraid for his bride's safety and believing the thugs wanted only a car, Willi meekly obeyed their orders.

But the three murderers had been in prison a long time and they wanted a woman as much as a getaway car.

Stripped
The terrified girl screamed to her husband for help and he tried to give it. The tough beat him senseless.

Then they took off with Winnie in the back seat. While one con drove, the other two got in with the screaming blonde and ripped her clothes off and savagely attacked her.

When they stopped, at their hideout in the woods the trio took turns raping Winnie.

Finally, the cops found them and closed in.

The desperate cons opened fire and dragged Winnie along with them when they made a run for it in her husband's car.

They engaged the cops in a running gun battle that left a policeman dead and another wounded. Then the desperados ran out of ammo. Just as the cops were about to riddle the car the trio meekly surrendered.

Kramer and bride Winnie; hoods beat him—raped her.

Winnie was reunited with her bridegroom. Their honeymoon ruined by a brutal nightmare, the pair aren't talking about future plans.

Meanwhile the three hoods are back in the pokies and an additional fifty years has been added to each of their sentences.

Convicted Perverts Get Suspended Sentences...

If they are willing to be castrated

A new way of controlling sex crimes is being tried out in New Zealand. Convicted perverts, rapists and child molesters are being offered suspended sentences, if they are willing to be castrated.

Or, if they feel that this is too high a price for them to pay, the sex criminal can have a year knocked off his sentence if he is willing to be sterilized.

Experts point out that more than 90% of all sex criminals are victims of mental disorders, and that their criminal tendencies are solely in the direction of sex.

If the means of having sex were removed, all of their other reactions would be normal. And removal of the sex organs instantly destroys all desires for sex.

Sterilization on the other hand, does not prevent a man from having sex. But it does prevent him from making any woman pregnant.

Thus, the victim of any sex attack could at least be sure that she would not bear a rapist's child.

So far, surprisingly enough, there have been quite a few takers. Nineteen convicted perverts have already agreed to be castrated; and eighty-three have chosen sterilization.

One of the men who permitted himself to be made into a eunuch had already been convicted 27 times on various sex charges. He told the judge, "I know I've done all these things, but I can't help myself. If this operation will let me go straight, it's worth it, no matter how desotic the cure may be."

The whole world is watching the New Zealand experiment. If it works maybe someday soon judges all over the world will be able to offer convicted perverts and rapists freedom if they are willing to be castrated.

Sex fiend Carey was freed—agreed to castration.

Coeds Work Their Way Through College Selling Their Bodies

When a group of college girls turned to prostitution recently, in an effort to raise the dough they need for their college tuition, it set off a sex war that made the H-bomb seem like hardly more than a miserable little firecracker.

The old-time whores who couldn't stand the competition, fought back with every dirty trick they knew.

Cruising Cuties

It all started when a number of young, well-dressed, curvy cuties showed up in the town of Lecce, Italy, and began peddling their wares. As they walked the streets, cruising the available johns, they made the regular hookers look like a bunch of old hags by comparison.

At first it wasn't so bad. The younger hookers worked the more expensive parts of town and charged prices three and four times the going rate.

But as more and more of the young girls appeared, the tougher the competition grew. In order to make out, the youngsters began taking over the low-priced trade, mainly the soldiers from the Army garrison.

Brawling Babies

The old-time prostitutes discovered that the young girls came from a woman's college in nearby Taranto.

Unable to keep up their business in any other way, the regular whores began fighting the college kids. Street brawls became a common occurrence. But even there, the coeds were getting the best of it.

Finally the whole business got completely out of hand. A gigantic free-for-all broke out on Lecce's main drag. That's when the cops stepped in. In one big raid they pulled in all the girls. Along with the hookers, 33 of the college coeds were arrested. When the police notified the college administration, all hell broke loose. The scandal rocked Italy.

Last Thursday, the girls were all suspended from the college and sent home to their parents. And so, for the time being at least, that ended the case of the coeds who tried to work their way through college by selling their bodies.

Sex for sale

Coed bodies for sale — the girls sell themselves to pay their way through college.

Thousands Of Addicts Are Dying From Poison Dope

Junkies have been dying like flies during the last couple of weeks. The cops have been picking them up from rooftops, hallways, abandoned buildings. Most of the addicts were found, lying in grotesque positions, their hypo needles still stuck in their arms.

They had injected themselves with certain death.

In New York City, where the narcotics squad has been picking up corpses at the rate of 10 a day, the Coroner reported that an investigation is under way to find out what sort of death dealing poisons are being used to cut the dope.

Pushers usually cut heroin with quinine or sugar, but recently decks have been found that were diluted with rat poison, strychnine and the powder from battery terminals.

Whatever it is, the heroin containing the poison injected directly into the veins, causes immediate lung congestion. The victims slip into a coma and never regain consciousness.

But the junkies, instead of being frightened, are going all out to buy "M" in greater amounts than ever. They are convinced that instead of balling mixed with poison, the dope is actually "Chinese Heroin" a particularly pure and powerful variety.

The fact that it's strong enough to cause death made one addict comment, "Man, this stuff must be pretty good—let's go out and cop some."

This reaction, is based on the fact that very often the biggest pushers increase the purity of their powder for a while just to stimulate trade. Seasoned hopheads benefit from the stronger "high", but others die.

The police believe that the present wave of slaughter among the addicts will continue for several weeks. As one official said, "The death rate may continue until the pushers build up their clientele to where they're making the profits they want."

But whatever the reason, whether the decks are loaded with poison or are just pure Chinese "H", the pushers keep getting richer as 20 new customers knock for every one who kicks off.

And the junkies keep dying by injecting themselves with sudden death.

She ran V-Girl gang

Cortes—feared Franco would kill him—went into hiding.

Nobody recognized the old man who walked into the square of the little village, yet 30 years before he had been their mayor.

But Manuel Cortes, mayor of the village of Mijas in Southern Spain, had "disappeared" when General Franco took over the country in 1939.

His wife had reported him "missing" and everybody figured he'd fled the country—to avoid being shot.

Both sides played very, very rough in the civil war that preceded Franco's final victory in 1939. Cortes had been a Republican and it was a cinch Franco's boys would execute any Republican high enough to be an official.

Even such a minor officer as Mayor of Mijas.

The firing squads worked overtime in the closing days of the war as village after village fell to the Fascists and Cortes figured he was a doomed man.

He "disappeared."

But he hadn't fled the country. He'd run only as far as his own cellar where he was in hiding.

His wife and daughter put out the word in the village that Pop had taken French leave.

As the years passed, he was forgotten.

Cortes stayed in his cellar during all the daylight hours and his family fed him. He got no exercise and very little fresh air.

Once in the early days of his "exile" he dressed himself as a woman and walked out into the village streets late at night.

But the risk of being picked up by the civil guard and unmarked scared Cortes and he went back to his cellar to stay for good.

His daughter kept him supplied with newspapers and he had a radio in his self-imposed "prison," so he was able to keep up with the outside world.

As the years passed and the Franco regime mellowed enough to free many of the Republicans doing life in prison, Cortes finally decided he could give himself up.

He got dressed up in his been suckered. Suckered by the girl gang that had terrorized Europe for almost two years.

Operating chiefly in Italy, the gang had plenty of other gimmicks.

A wealthy man would meet a girl with a body that just screamed SEX in the club car of a fashionable express train. And she would be very willing.

In just no time, the gorgeous girl and the wealthy man would be playing family in his drawing room. The girl would be long gone before Mr. Wealthy discovered that his wallet and his jewelry were also gone.

But the gang didn't stop at only this form of blackmail.

They haunted school yards in Rome and Milan, looking for kids as young as 10 to tell a "cotton tale." They would make fast sales, then disappear to show up later in a new town at a new school yard.

The gang had Interpol going nuts until one of the members, 19-year-old Christina Raske, a German, overplayed her hand.

She was picked up by a wealthy motorist while using the "hitchehike" bait.

The motorist didn't want a fast role in the play in the back seat of the car—he wanted his ball in a hotel room where he could be comfortable.

But as she tried to walk his wallet into her purse he caught her.

The motorist he never called the cops.

Christina had no intention of taking a rap by herself. She named the others: Giuliana Dejana, 31, the leader; Giuseppina Castonova, who tried to seduce the detective who arrested her; Anna Amelia Castonova and Maria Ramon and Teresa Soia Nova, two Spanish women.

The eight were tossed into the pakey to await trial on charges of larceny, prostitution and narcotics peddling. And now the men of Europe can hope that the next time they pick up a lot of willing girls, they'll be out for sex—not their wallets.

She copped out

Marina Christina Raske blew the whistle on the gang.

Starlet Tony Kee: "A man takes a woman for better or worse. A woman takes a man for everything!"

"My Own Father

Him"

At 14, Elia Guiterrez had such a lush body and such beautiful legs that all the lads in her neighborhood wanted to crawl in bed with her.

Two days later, Elia shot him to death.

Two years ago, when she was only 12, her family grocer lured her into his cellar. There he tried to sex it up with her. But Elia was able to escape that time.

The boys in her school made pitches for a roll in the woods with her, but she was able to fend them off.

Last month her father—who had always been nice to Ellis—got roaring drunk.

Elia was lying half naked in her bed, trying to beat the heat of Mexico City.

Her father, Guadalupe, came bursting into her room. He took one look at that nearly naked young body and was overcome by lust.

Despite her pleadings and screams, Elia was brutally raped by her own father.

That turned her love for him to loathing. She got one of his pistols and hid it in her room.

Two days later Pop got tanked again. There was rape in his eye as he charged into Ella's room.

Elia leveled the heavy pis-told at her father and snapped off seven shots. Bullet after bullet tore into his beer-filled belly. He spun once and toppled to the floor dead.

Elia ran to a friend's house, called the cops and poured out her story of having been raped by her own father. The case will probably never come to trial as Elia was protecting herself from incest-rage when she shot her own father.

Wife Swappers Live Together Under One Roof

Bill and Linda Bradford (l) moved in with Frank & Jane Hanson for kookie sex kicks.

When the Bradfords met the Hansons a couple of months ago, a brand new experiment in togetherness was born. The two couples decided to move in together and share each other's possessions, lives and wives.

The Bradfords were nudists and had been going to nudist camps for years. But though they'd always enjoyed looking at the other well-built couples who played happily around in naked splendor, and even thinking about having sex with them, they'd never actually followed up the idea.

That is, until the Hansons came along.

Bouncing Breasts
Bill Bradford took one look at the sleek curves of Jane Hanson and decided he was going to get those big bouncing breasts and wide sweeping hips for himself—or bust trying.

He didn't have to try very hard. The Hansons, Jane told Bill Bradford, believed in wife-swapping. She suggested that Bill and his wife Linda move in with her and her husband, in their large ranch house in the Southern California hills.

Linda thought it was a great idea, when Bill told her about it.

Share Everything
At the present time, the two couples have been living together under one roof for fifteen weeks. And it's been working out perfectly.

"We share everything," Bill Bradford told this writer. "We even share the same bedroom. We have two big double beds set up side by side, and when we turn in at night, we never know until the very last minute which fellow is going to be cuddling up with whom.

Couples share love nest to solve sex problems

All four also said that there wasn't a sign of jealousy.

Solves Sex Problems
So it now looks as if the four nudists who are living together under one roof are going to keep right on that way for a long time to come.

The whole idea of two couples shackling up under one roof may not be as far out as it seems. According to Professor Jay Thompson of the Central States Research Bureau, wife swapping can solve most sex problems.

"Nearly every married couple cheats these days," says the professor. "At least in swapping, husbands and wives are on an equal basis. It keeps them from feeling guilty. And guilt is the basis for most sex problems. Since neither partner can blame the other as a result of a wife-swapping agreement, because both are in it equally, it allows both to enjoy their sex kicks with any danger of family fights. It's actually divorce insurance."

So who knows. Maybe in the next few years we'll be seeing mixed foursomes in half the houses of America. Maybe the Hansons and the Bradfords really saved something. According to the professor, it just could be.

flesh and no power on earth could have done anything for her.

The woman, 40-year-old Alma Reese, was dead. But this was not the execution of a murderer in the official electric chair of some state prison.

The rigged chair was homemade and it was Mrs. Reese's way of committing suicide.

When her husband found her, she had stopped twisting and only the odor of scorching flesh remained from the moment of "execution."

Her right hand, though, was frozen to the switch she had flipped in her Nebraska home.

Mrs. Reese chose her gruesome suicide path last month while her husband was away at work.

Leaving a note, which—political said—complained that

"everybody in this world is against me," she rigged an all metal chair.

First Mrs. Reese stripped the insulation from a length of lamp wire. Then she strapped herself into the chair, using one of her husband's belts.

She wrapped the bare wire around her neck and shoulders and reached to the wall and flipped the switch.

The metal chair grounded her so that the ordinary home current smuffed out her life as effectively in her homemade electric chair as if she'd been sitting in the real thing.

Hooker Claims Pimp As Tax Deduction

Vivian Berger says pimp's take should come under the heading of business expense.

A hooker threw a curve at the tax department last week and the tax-men are still worried.

It wasn't the nut of curve turns usually thrown at a man, either—the prostitute tried to deduct her pimp from her income tax.

She's Vivian Berger, a 26-year-old floater who reported income of 6,000 marks last year from practicing the world's oldest profession on the streets of Munich.

But this year she did a little better on her back. Exactly twice as well as a mark of fact.

Vivian reported that enough men were willing to pay her to charm them in the sack for her income to hit 12,000 marks.

But what made the income tax boys of West Germany yell "No, no," was the fact that Vivian deducted 4,000 of those extra marks as tribute she'd paid her pimp.

Vivian's argument was that as a free lance peddler of her groovy hips, she was worth only 600 marks.

Pimp Bert Brown — hustler claimed him as a deduction.

But once she'd hired her procurer to rustle up more johns, she doubled her take.

However, she had to give him half of the new money, meaning he got a fast $2,000 of those marks before the bed she'd earned them on turned cold.

Furthermore, she said, she'd spent another grand on her "agents" to keep him in schnapps and good humor.

The tax boys said nothing doing, but Vivian's suing in higher courts. She claims her pimp is as much deductible as a junk man's push cart. Some worried tax officials are afraid she may just win.

Antonio Zarelli and his family died because he didn't dig queer love bit.

Youth refused fag's advances so Homo Shot Boy's Whole Family in Cold Blood...

When homosexual Salvatore Di Mezza, 18 made a pass at Antonio Zarelli, 16, Antonio made no bones about the fact that he didn't dig the queer type of loving. But Antonio's snub so incensed the fag that last week Salvatore invaded Antonio's home and slaughtered his whole family.

Antonio had met the devotee—Salvatore Di Mezza—at the place where he worked. They'd become friends but then Salvatore made a homosexual pass at Antonio.

The 16-year-old lad told Salvatore that he wasn't that kind of a boy. Then Salvatore asked if they could go on being friends and Antonio said "okay" but no hanky-panky.

That didn't suit Salvatore at all.

Last Sunday he showed up at the Zarelli home in Benevento, Italy, just as Antonio and his parents were sitting down to dinner.

Suddenly, Salvatore pulled a pistol and ordered everyone to keep their seats at the dinner table. He announced that before he left he was going to kill them all.

The 20-year-old brawler had accused and was attacking them.

"I'm going to treat you the way Antonio treated me." Sweating a little, the young Zarelli begged his "friend" to put down the gun. He explained again that he was willing to be pals with Salvatore; he just didn't dig the unnatural sex stuff.

Salvatore just let them talk and sweat.

He suggested they eat their dinners, since the food was on the table.

The Zarelli's pretended to eat, but they couldn't—not with a gun looking down their throats. Only Salvatore ate anything with gusto.

After seven hours, Salvatore twirled the pistol idly and pointed it at Antonio's mother. Then he pulled the trigger.

A spot of red blossomed on Mrs. Zarelli's bosom and her hands fluttered upward as if they would like to pull the bullet out.

Mortally wounded, she started to topple off her chair.

Antonio's father jumped up to try to crash the young homo and caught a bullet between the eyes.

Then for one more long second, Salvatore taunted Antonio before he put a bullet through the boy's heart.

After murdering the whole family, Salvatore calmly walked out and went to the police station and gave himself up.

Clip Artists' Cos' Women Out Of Their Hair

A lot of women in New York thought they were getting a bargain in hair-do's recently, but they got clipped—literally.

The con artist left them as bald as a cue ball.

Police said they'd received eight complaints in recent weeks, but they added that probably most women who fell for the gimmick were too embarrassed to hollar copper.

The man works on a door-to-door campaign. When the lady of the house answers his ring, he offers her a cut-rate hair-styling right then and there.

In some cases he claims he's about to open a beauty shop and he's handing out cheap samples as advertising.

If the lady ever checked the address of his upcoming salon, she'd find it's a vacant lot.

However he manages it, the con artist gets inside and gets the victim relaxed. That's how he clips the women before they quit realize what's happening.

In a beauty chair most women read or watch TV or something, not really paying attention to exactly what the man is doing.

When this con artist is operating, he's clipped off all their locks before they catch on.

Then, there they are, bald as an egg.

There's not much they can do about it, either. The only charge that could be filed against the con artist would be "assault." But if the woman has given her consent for him to work on her hair, she can't even charge him with that.

Why does the clip artist con women out of their hair? Because human hair is very valuable these days for wigs and the con man is making a bundle.

She got clipped

LIBERAL ADULTS CLUB
Box 154-NQ,

Annelie Niebank didn't know a real gun from a fake one.

The girl was broke and figured the only way she would be able to eat would be to hold up a bank. So she took the last of her few coins and went into a bar to buy a gun.

She found a man who sold her a wicked looking Luger. Gun in hand, she strolled into the nearest bank and promptly stuck the pistol in the teller's face.

There was one thing that was very wrong, though:

Although the girl didn't know it, the gun was as phony as a square banana.

The would-be bandit was Annelie Siegfried-Niebank, a 20-year-old German who'd come to Paris to study art.

Girl Bandit Tries To Stick Up Bank With Toy Gun

"I thought the gun was real", she said after her capture...

Everything cost more than she had expected, though, and by the middle of last week she was hurting for groceries.

That's when she took every last franc she had and went into the neighborhood bar to see if she could buy a pistol.

Annelie didn't know the man who sold her the "Luger," but he assured her it was cocked, primed and ready for action.

So Annelie promptly went into action.

The teller into whose face she stuck the pistol at first jumped and tried to do just like the lady told him to.

Then, as teller Jean Blanc was stuffing money into bags, he noticed that Annelie's hand was shaking more than his were.

Then he noticed paint peeling from the "Luger." It looked phony to him.

Suddenly, Blanc took a big chance.

He reached out and grabbed for the gun. It wrenched out of Annelie's hand and Blanc realized he was holding a plastic toy that weighed maybe a tenth as much as a real gun.

At that point, Annelie tried to pretend it was all a joke. The cops didn't laugh.

They threw her into the pokies, where she'll be able to eat, all right, but she won't have any freedom. As the police hauled her into a paddy wagon, Annelie wailed: "I thought the gun was real. I really and truly thought it was real."

Hookers Beat The Law With Floating Brothels

Enterprising hookers and madams in several large cities have borrowed a page from pro gamblers in order to evade the long arm of the law. The play-fowl clients, informed of where the action is, the hookers employ "strivers" who pass the word along through the local grapevine.

The brothels operate on back-to-work or even night-to-night bases in transient apartments or hotels where the room clerks know enough not to know anything.

In order to keep their regular customer has to keep up with the changes or find himself out in the cold.

But once he's inside, the action is wide-open. As a Chicago hooker said recently when describing the floating "house" she worked with, "times ain't like they were in the 'good old days'; nowadays, we don't turn down anybody or anything, no matter how freaky. Our motto is, 'If it can be done, we'll do it.'"

A perfect example is a

"house of orgy" that floats about New Orleans and environs. The outfit, staffed by shapely young girls who know all the tricks of their trade, changes locations from week to week.

By the time the local fuzz think they've got a fix on it, the "house" has moved to parts unknown.

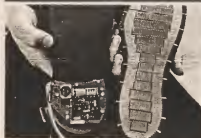

It's called the "house of orgy" because, instead of the old-fashioned brothel policy of having the men choose their playmates, then retire to the privacy of a bedroom, the Johns pay a flat rate when they enter, check their clothes at the door, and join in a full-scale orgy with a bevy of bare ladies and all the pot they can smoke.

Police are investigating the operation, but have thus far been stymied in their efforts to raid the joint.

"How can you raid a house of prostitution when you're not even sure it's going to be there when you get there?" asked one frustrated fuzz.

Seeing Eye Shoe Helps Blind People See

This electronic shoe enables blind to "see" by radar.

The day is not far off when a blind man will be able to stride down the street without a cane or a seeing eye dog. An electronic gadget in the heel of his shoe will do the "seeing" for him.

The secret is tiny electronic equipment so small it makes the elements of a transistor radio look huge. The mini-cells throw out laser beams of light that bounce off any obstacle in the way.

One beam hits six feet ahead of the man. Another hits three feet ahead. Still, another sweeps to one side, while a twin laser sweeps to the other.

The fifth—and fanciest—beam is routed to what looks like a metal tap in the toe of the blind man's shoe. This is then bounced on an angle to "feel" out what's ahead of him at nose level. The beams are too weak to hurt human flesh, but strong enough to detect any obstacle.

Whenever the beams strike an object, they operate like radar. The signal sent back to the blind man changes and he knows he must shift his position or stop dead till he finds out what's in the way.

A tiny wire leads from the heel to what looks just like a miniature hearing aid.

When all is well, he hears a steady, pleasant hum something like the test pattern of a TV station.

Let a beam "find" an obstacle and the sound warns him. If it's on his right, he hears an angry buzzing like a swarm of bees. If it's on his left, there is a loud beep-beep-beep. If the obstacle is directly ahead and low, he hears a bass note like an oboe. If it's ahead at nose level, he hears a high note like a clarinet.

All he has to do is learn the four signals. And that takes a lot less time than training a seeing eye dog.

Rent A Car Get A Girl

They put her in the driver's bed

Some car rental agencies boast about putting you in the driver's seat, but Paul Weintraub's auto rental agency in Springfield, went one better—it puts a girl in the driver's lap. Each car rented from Paul came fully equipped with radio, heater, and a gorgeous chick, who was more than willing to jump into bed with the john who rented the car.

Cops cracked down on Paul's agency, and stalled his fleet of free-wheeling floonies last week after an anonymous tip led plainclothesmen to investigate the unusual rent-a-car, get-a-gal plan.

Customers who had been put wise to the idea by hotel bellhops or bartenders simply strolled into Paul's agency and asked for "a model with a lot of kick to it." They got the very newest models in autos alright, and a sleek, luscious-curved gal to go along with it.

With the chick parked up in the front seat, smuggling her high-velocity body against his, the renter had only to drive to her apartment for a session of thrills in the sack that he'd long remember.

Or, if he preferred, a deserted country road would be a good place for both of them to doff their duds for a wild romp of uninhibited love-making in the back seat boudoir.

Paul's girls were in just as good shape as his cars, every one of them being young, and obliging and sexy.

Of course, Paul's cars cost a little more to rent than the ordinary ones, but with all the extras he offered, all the other car rental agencies were only second best.

When a plain-clothes cop rented a compact car, and found himself accompanied into it by a not-so-compact blonde, who started to unzip, unbuckle and unbuckle for action the minute they were out of town, Paul's agency ran out of gas.

Paul is now being held on charges of pimping, and his service-with-a-smile girls—who really did give extra service—are behind bars on charges of prostitution.

Gal shown above is one good reason why unique rental agency is favorite of johns.

How Fugitives Beat Law With Phony Birth Certificates...

If the cops are on your tail, what's the best thing you could have?

A new identity, naturally. So that even if a policeman stopped you, he'd think you were somebody else.

Preferably, somebody with no record anywhere.

And that's exactly what the mobsters who work the new racket are offering crooks who are on the run: New identities, complete with legit birth certificates. And no worry that the new identity may turn out to be somebody wanted somewhere else on a murder rap.

They are selling the birth certificates of dead children.

The ghouls comb the back issues of newspapers for the obituaries of boys under 15.

Then they write to the dead kid's county register for a pretestat copy of the birth certificate.

Such copies are usually mailed for a small fee with no questions because the register assumes it's the person himself or an interested relative who's writing.

Then with a supply of legitimate birth certificates on hand, the racketeers are in business.

When a criminal on the lam comes to them, they comb their files and if the man is say about 40, they match him with the birth certificate of a child born about 1929.

The cops of all countries and Interpol are very worried about the new racket.

Said one troubled official:

"It's foolproof for the crook. Absolutely nothing can go amiss with this system. I don't see how we can beat it."

A fugitive who is so hot he'd better leave the country, can buy a birth certificate and with it get a bona fide passport.

Most police officers think this is how James Earl Ray shipped to England. Although red hot and wanted for the snipe murder of Martin Luther King, he somehow managed to get a passport and flee to Britain.

How did he do it? Probably he was one of the earliest customers of the racket.

However, crooks aren't the only ones dealing with the mobsters who sell real birth certificates.

Plenty of people—like guys in hock to their eyebrows and men who've had enough of their nagging wives—are in the market for foolproof new identities.

If they know where to go, they can buy one.

Killed My Mother's Lover

Because he seduced my sister

Salvatore Ponetto—wasn't satisfied with mom, tried to make daughter.

Caterino Corlino with two of her youngre kids, Vincenzo and Franco—her lover was making time with her daughter.

Natale Carlino killed his mother's lover, pumping three slugs into his head and spattering some of his brains on the sidewalk. The 23-year-old Natale admits that himself.

But the youth didn't commit murder because Salvatore Panetta was making time with his mother.

Natale knocked off Salvatore because the 38-year-old swordman was playing hot sheets with his 15-year-old sister.

That was more than the hot-blooded Natale was willing to put up with.

Actually, Natale told the cops, he didn't dislike Salvatore as a kind of uncle. And in sophisticated Rivalta, Italy, it was taken for granted that just because Caterina Carlino was a widow was no reason for her to retire from the sexual scene.

But then Salvatore started treating Rosetta in ways an "uncle" shouldn't.

Before long his "fooling around" had gotten to the point where he sweet-talked the young girl into bed when he thought no one would find out.

But Natale found out because Rosetta told him—since their father was dead, Natale was "the man of the family." And Rosetta knew her honor had been smeared.

Natale told the cops that when he heard "Rosetta's story, he knew his duty and he did it."

"I had to avenge the honor of my sister after she was seduced by the man who was my mother's lover."

His revenge was to buy a .38-caliber automatic and sit on the front steps, waiting for the man who was his mother's lover and his sister's seducer to appear.

Natale Carlino—as eldest he defended the family honor.

When Salvatore got close enough, Natale opened fire. His first bullet caught the lover-boy in the mouth, turning his chin red with blood. The next slug split Salvatore's right eye and he sat down heavily on the sidewalk and died before the next shot. That last bullet took the top of his head off.
